Fire of unknown origin swept the farm of Samuel Clarke, cattle dealer, in Preston, early Tuesday evening, destroying a cattle barn, horse barn, come crib and sile. Twenty-four head of cattle and one horse perished in the fames, and farm wagons, machinery and tools were totally destroyed. Mr. Clarke estimates his loss at about $8,500, partially covered by insurance. Mr. Clarke retired for the night about 7.30 o'clock, and a few minutes before 8 o'clock, and a few minutes before 8 o'clock, and a few minutes before 8 o'clock he was awakened by the cry of fire. Jumping up and hastily clothing himself, he ran out of the house and found his barn a mass of fiames. Four horses were in stalls in the horse barn, and Mr. Clarke succeeded in getting three of the animals out of the building. The fourth he was unable to reach owing to the dense smoke, and it was burned allye. In the cattle barn were 24 head of the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible even to attempt a rescue and they perished in the fames. Wind Changing Saved House.

A stiff breeze was blowing clouds of the first and a few minutes after it had it was impossible even to attempt a rescue and they perished in the fames. Wind Changing Saved House.

A stiff breeze was blowing clouds of the first and and was very was the cattle and the predact of the road leading from the road to the road teading from the road to the road to the clark and then returned to the road to th sistance. The auto went as far as the foot of the road leading from the main road to the road to the Clarke farm and then returned to the clarke farm and then returned to the clay.

The cattle and horse barns adjoined each other. One was about 60 feet square and the other about 30x40 feet, both two stories high and of wooden frame construction with tin roof. The corn crib, filled with corn, was located about 50 feet from the barns, and the large silo was within 30 or 40 feet of the barns. This was filled with fodder which was destroyed by the fire. In the barns were several tons of hay, besides a quantity of grain. A milk wagon, all ready for the morning route, was destroyed with the other farm wagons, and the farm machinery, which was also destroyed, included a mowing machine.

Fire Seen from Here.

In the cattle barn were 24 head of the finest cattle in this section, but the finest cattle in this section, but the fiames had gained such headway that it was impossible even to attempt a rescue and they perished in the flames.

Wind Changing Saved House.

A stiff breeze was blowing clouds of sparks directly towards the two-story farmhouse and some apprehension was felt for its safety, but fortunately the wind changed a few minutes later and sent the sparks to the northeast of the house. A telephone call was sent in to the Central station and although the fire was out of the city limits, a Chief H. L. Stanton sent the autochemical company to the scene. The auto left the station at 8.55 o'clock and made a quick run, but the burning buildings were in ruins when they reached there. The nearest hydrant was nearly two miles away, and so whatever machinery and stock were needed.

Mr. Reeves has fully demonstrated that Flanders Plain will respond liberally to good cultivation with up-to-date machinery. He planted his potatoes with a machine and dug them by machinery, saving much labor and expense. He cultivated his crops by machinery as far as possible nad has reduced hand work to a minimum.

On 10 acres he raised over 2,000 bushels of potatoes of saleable size. From three acres of cauliflower he has harvested about 200 barrels, and expects to have 100 more if the freeze holds off another week. He has sold 1,000 quart boxes of Brussels sprouts and expects to have at least 2,000 more before spring, for this is a crop that grows all winter and thrives in the snow. He had a fine crop of red cabbage Ruta bagas and carrots are not harvested yet, but look very promising.

Most of the caulifier has been sold in the markets of Norwich and New London. The Brussels sprouts were Centinuing, the speaker said:

This old story contains a useful lesson. There was One whose face was marred more than any man. He was desi sed and rejected of men, a man of serrews and acquainted with grief.

And yet as He walked among men, there were some that saw in Him the answer of their longings. There were some who saw in His face the reflection of exakted ideals. And they who thus gazed upon Him longed to become like Him.

I think when I read that sweet story of cld, when I seas the moned men, what a privilege it must have been, just to see Him. There is a tradition that the men of Nazareth, when they were sad and sorrowful, would say one to another: "Let us now so into our hospital their commander for the soldiers came in the soldiers came."
